
WHOLE EARTH REVIEW

Dear Subscriber:

There are still two issues remaining in your subscription, but if you renew now you can save yourself $3. That's good news for your pocketbook — and for all the trees that won't get pulped to become subsequent renewal letters.

As I'm sure you agree, it's extremely important that Whole Earth Review remain alive as a viable and sustainable business. Therefore, we have been forced to raise the price of subscriptions, our first increase in over three years. Paper and printing costs are rising quickly; postage alone will increase by 25% in 1991. There is also legislation afoot to charge us sales tax on certain subscriptions.

Given this inevitable price increase, there's all the more reason for you to take advantage of this special price reduction offer. If you renew now, your renewal rate will be just $21. If you wait, you'll pay $24. Renew for two or three years to take even further advantage of this discount.

We are doing our part to keep Whole Earth Review alive and well; your part is as simple as sending back the enclosed renewal notice.

Take advantage of this one-time savings offer; it won't be repeated. Do it today, before it comes time to pay the regular, higher price!

Sincerely,

Peter Klehm
Circulation Director
